Text: E. J. Lemmon, Beginning Logic (with supplementary material later) The book sounds as if it was written for British schoolboys around the turn of the century, to sit beside leather-bound books on rhetoric and Latin grammar. The tone may be off-putting, but the book has the right level. It does not assume any mathematical background.

John Lemmon became one of the early champions of Prior's distinctive approach to tense logic, and Lemmon's later work on alethic modality and applications of modal logic to ethics bear the mark of Prior's influence. At this time, Lemmon published a treatment of alethic and epistemic modalities which introduced some systems of non-normal modal logics that have proven to have had lasting interest, the alethic system S0.5 and the epistemic systems E1-E5 linked to the systems S0.5 and Lewis's ...

Moral dilemmas, or moral conflicts, present a leading problem in Ethics. Ross calls them the problem of conflicting prima facie moral obligations. Lemmon calls them 'moral dilemmas', and Sinnott-Armstrong in his recent book discusses them thoroughly and provides extensive references to relevant literature.
